

Revive and nurture relationships by learning to talk about trust.

BUILDING TRUST

Trust can be hard to earn and easy to lose. How can organizations nurture trust at all levels?

Trust is core to how people work together, listen to one another, and build effective relationships. In fact, the primary factor affecting employee turnover is whether or not a trusting relationship was developed between the manager and the employee. Yet many people are unaware of the actions that influence trust. While almost all employees consider trust in the workplace to be important, only 39% of US employees say they trust the senior leaders at their firms! Only 20% of US employees fully trust the organization they work for.

The Building Trust program creates awareness and sensitivity about which behaviors are known to erode trust and which behaviors build and sustain trust. The model is easy to learn and follow, and is based on the four elements of trust: Able, Believable, Connected, and Dependable. Individuals learn to identify actions as A, B, C, or D. This ability becomes a very important communication tool.

By using the ABCD Trust Model™, individuals are able to look carefully at their relationships and focus on the aspects of those relationships that need repair or need to be further nurtured in order to build and maintain trust.
